RUSSIAN FLEET STRONGER NOW, SEEKS THE FOE

Manila Receives Report That Squadrons of Rojestvensky and Nebagatoff Have Joined—Paris
Reports Them Looking for Fight.

NO PRICE TOO HIGH FOR VICTORY OVER JAPANESE.

Czar's Admiral Said to Be Determined on Destruction of Togo's Forces, Even at Cost of His Own Annihilation—The Two Navies.

LONDON, April 21.—The Daily Express' Paris correspondent, during Wednesday night, says: "The Defense confirms the rumor that the Russian fleet left the coast of Annan this (Thursday) morning." The Daily Mail's Hong Kong correspondent says, under Thursday's date: "Ships arriving here report no signs of the Baltic fleet in Kamtschatka."

MANILA, P. I., April 21.—Admiral Rojestvensky's Russian fleet of 20 ships have been reinforced by Admiral Nebagatoff's squadron of five ironclads, according to information received by American naval officers here.

Assuming this to be true, the Russians now have a force of 25 powerful fighting vessels to 27 at the disposal of the Japanese. The Russians, however, have a decided superiority in battleships—12 to 10. On the other hand, the Japanese ships are in much better condition and generally of more modern construction than those of the enemy.

The combined fleets of Admiral Rojestvensky and Nebagatoff have 670 guns, as compared with 620 on the Japanese fleet. The detailed comparison is as follows:

	Guns.	Russian.	Japanese.
12½-inch	0	3
12-inch	30	20
10½-inch	0	4
10-inch	3	1
9-inch	8	0
8-inch	15	28
6-inch	174	178
4½-inch	28	77
32-pounders	134	112
6-pounders	0	40
1, 2 and 3 pounders	280	159

Reports are in circulation here that Admiral Rojestvensky proposes to engage the Japanese at once with the purpose of inflicting the heaviest possible damage, even at the risk of the destruction of his own fleet.

Should the Russians succeed in their endeavor to demolish Admiral Togo's naval forces, the Japanese fleet, now having greater at Libau and the two cruisers at Vladivostok would give the Russians the command of the China seas.

Japanese Are Advancing.

TOKIO, April 21.—The Japanese army in Manchuria is advancing northward, according to dispatches from the front.

The Mikado intends to time his military and naval attacks on the Russian army in Manchuria in the hope that a dual victory will end the war.

The Japanese regard the Kamtschatka incident with growing feelings of resentment against France.

All the commercial and financial exchanges are closed today in advance of Good Friday, and no market reports will appear in the editions of today's paper. The Chicago Board of Trade will be open for business tomorrow, but the local stock exchange and the New York Stock Exchange will not open until Monday.

Upper Alton High School Freshmen and Juniors Attacking Sophomores Draw Fusillade.

WHO STOLE FINE CAKE?

Girls Were Entertaining Boys at Banquet Which Uninvited Youths Disturbed.

Juniors and freshmen of Upper Alton High School added an unexpected element of interest and excitement to the banquet which the girls of the sophomore class gave to the boys of the same class Wednesday night.

The Juniors and freshmen were not invited.

They attacked the banquet hall, and while some of them were making a demonstration in force in front of the house, somebody climbed in at the unguarded kitchen window, stole the class cake which was intended to be cut up and served as a finale of the banquet, and disappeared.

The banquet was given at the home of Miss Little Rice in Upper Alton. All the sophomore classmen were present; so were all the girls.

The banquet proceeded nicely through most of the courses, and then taking began. Miss Eunice Dunn presided as toastmaster. Walter Stelle responded to a toast.

"Sophomore Class Girls"; Prof. R. L. Lowry responded to "Sophomore Boys as Athletes," and Prof. D. M. Bishop talked of "Public School Life."

Then the girls gave one of the surprises planned for the occasion. They brought out a beautiful class flag which they had made and presented it to the boys.

Exclamations of delight were suddenly drowned by a fearful hubbub from three sides of the house. The Juniors and freshmen, who had been making a demonstration in front of the house, had broken in at the doorbell, played "tick-tack" against the sides of the house, and yelled like Indians on the warpath. The din they raised was deafening and not to be endured.

The Juniors determined to put an end to the disturbance. They climbed upon the roof and repelled invasion. The result was that they rushed in masses to the front porch.

Divorced Wife Seeks Part of $20,000 Estate She Says Her Work of 35 Years Secured

MRS. MINNIE TORLINGTON.

Mother of Ten Children on the Stand Tells How During All Her Married Life She Was Slave to Economy, Doing Outside Work to Add to Savings.

The case of Mrs. Minnie Torlinton, who is suing her former husband, Michael Torlinton, for an accounting for rents and a division of property in his name estimated to be worth $20,000, was taken under advisement by Judge Taylor in the Circuit court late Thursday afternoon, as told in the Post-Dispatch. Attorneys have until next Thursday to file briefs.

Mrs. Torlinton confesses to being 31 years old, but as she sat on the witness stand, telling a story of 31 years of hard work and pinching economy, she did not look more than 25. She is fleshy, but her face is soft and of excellent color; her brow is almost entirely devoid of wrinkles, and her hair, of golden-yellow, has no hint of gray.

Mrs. Torlinton testified that when she married, at the age of 17, she had $400 which she had saved during five years of work in a bag factory, and this was invested by her husband and the property put in his name. Later, when she received $700 from her mother's estate, she says she also gave it to her husband to invest in the same way. She said she did nothing for neighbors, and took in washing, all the money for which she saved and gave her husband for investment. When she asked him to put some of the property in her name, she said, he replied that he was 13 years older than she and would die first; then she would have all the property. She told of raising 10 children, six of whom are living.

"Do you mean to say you did all this work and took care of 10 young children?" asked Judge Taylor.

"I did all the work," replied the witness, "but you know all the children were not young at the same time."

Torlinton, in his own defense, denied that his wife had given him the sums she claimed to have given, or that she did the hard work she said she did. He said he made all the money himself, and gave her $10 a week on which to run the house.

The Torlontons were married in 1871, and separated in 1888. Both filed suit for divorce, and Torlinton secured one on appeal, the allegations including violent temper.

Thousands of Women Have Kidney Troubles and Never Suspect It.

Almost every one, from personal experience, knows that the effects of any kind of severe physical strain are felt, first of all, in the small of the back—in other words, in those Vital Organs, the Kidneys. This is as true in the case of the very powerful as it is with one of less strength, and it is especially true whenever the kidneys are weak or out of order.

The Great Kidney Remedy Swamp-Root strengthens the kidneys and through them helps all the other organs.

WOMEN suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not always correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for their ills, when in fact disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles.

Didn't Know I Had Kidney Trouble

I had tried so many remedies without benefit that I was about discouraged but in a few days

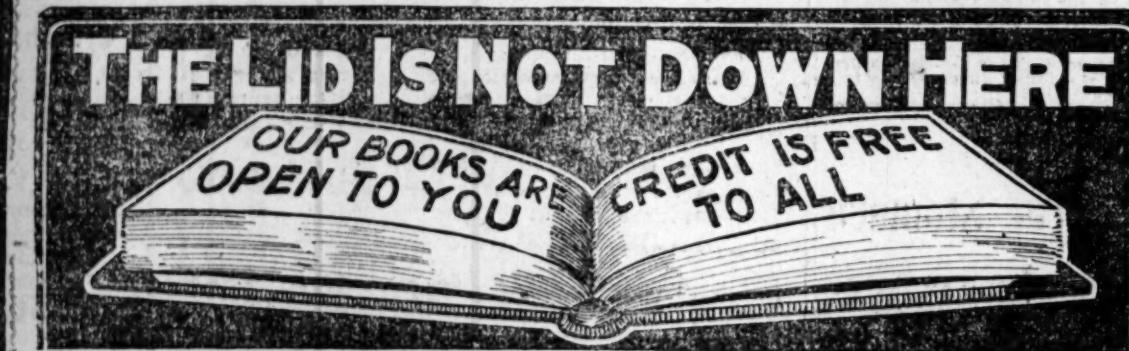

MRS. A. L. WALKER.

After taking your wonderful Swamp-Root I began to feel better. I was out of health and run down generally, had a bad cough and suffered from headaches most of the time. I did not realize that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but Swamp-Root, as above stated, and there is such a pleasant taste in Swamp-Root, as it goes right in and out of the digestive system, has cured me in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all women.

ery. I became weak, emaciated and very much run down and was obliged to pass water very often night and day. After I had used a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I immediately bought of my druggist two large bottles and continued taking it and was cured entirely. I can now stand on my feet all day and be active. I am no longer subject to the fits of pain that used to trouble me. Swamp-Root has proved a blessing to me.

GAS RANGE EXPLODES BURNING WOMAN

She Was Getting Breakfast and Shock Hurls Her Across Kitchen.

BIG WINDOWS SMASHED.

Shattered Glass Fills Street at Tenth and Cass Avenue, Injuring None.

A gas explosion in the saloon and boarding house conducted by Miller & Warner at 101 Cass avenue burst two large plate glass windows in the front of the house, scattering the shattered glass all over the Cass avenue sidewalk, and burned Mrs. Charles Miller badly about the arms and neck.

The explosion occurred at 8:10 o'clock, while it was raining. Pedestrians had sought cover, and at the time no one was passing the place.

In the rear on the first floor is a kitchen in which is a large range; in front, in separate rooms, are the barroom and the dining room, each facing Cass avenue.

Mrs. Miller was at the range, with her sleeves rolled up, preparing breakfast. Her two children were upstairs.

Without apparent cause, there came a blinding flash and a terrific detonation. Mrs. Miller was hurled backward, and the big windows, each 7 feet by 8 feet, in front of the barroom and dining room, burst out.

Frags of the glass were thrown clear across the sidewalk, some of them dropping into the gutter.

Mrs. Miller's cries brought men to her assistance, and a physician was called. He found her severely injured, but her arm, however, was entirely burned off. The other arm was not so badly hurt. The burns about the face and neck were less serious. She was treated at home.

The only explanation of the explosion, so far advanced, is that escaping gas accumulated in some manner.

STORM SWEEPS MISSOURI; ONE DEAD, LOSS BIG

Wind, Snow, Rain and Hail Play Havoc Throughout Entire West—Buildings Blown Down, Stock and Crops Suffer.

SEVEN PERSONS HURT IN BLOW AT PEORIA, ILL.

Monett (Mo.) Woman Instantly Killed by Lightning—Elevator Loss at Kansas City $130,000—Snow Buries Western States.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PEORIA, Ill., April 21.—Seven persons were injured and a dozen buildings wrecked by a severe wind storm which passed over this city at 7 o'clock last night. None of the injured will die.

The storm described a semi-circle in passing over the city, touching four blocks and lasting but a brief fraction of a minute. The forecaster at the United States weather station says the wind attained a velocity of 40 miles an hour.

Among the buildings destroyed were four dwellings, the others wrecked being barns. Several of the buildings were lifted from their foundations and blown a distance of thirty or forty feet.

Damage last night was the first recorded in this city, with wind as the cause, since 1854.

Missouri Cities Suffer. Telegrams to the Post-Dispatch from various Missouri cities indicate that last night's storm carried the force of a tornado in many places. Considerable damage from wind and rain is reported throughout the state. Lightning was responsible for one death.

At Springfield, Mo., the wind is reported to have attained a velocity of 60 miles an hour at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon during a heavy rainstorm. Hail broke two thousand to three thousand square feet of glass in the greenhouse of J. M. Grater, just south of the city. The Patterson residence in Main street was blown from its foundation and badly damaged.

Barns and houses were unroofed and trees blown down by the windstorm, which visited Bevier, Mo., about 4 p.m. yesterday. Considerable damage was caused to stock. The rainfall was the heaviest recorded this year and was accompanied by hail.

The Grant-Kenny elevator, near Kansas City, was destroyed by lightning. The building contained 72,000 bushels of wheat, 12,000 bushels of corn and 10,000 bushels of oats, all of which were completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Mrs. A. C. Hartman of Monett, Mo., was struck by lightning while holding a telephone receiver in her hand yesterday afternoon, and instantly killed.

Storm Extends West.

Not only in Missouri, but throughout the entire west the storm is reported as severe and having caused much damage. A snow-storm and blizzard is raging over Nebraska, the heaviest snowfall of the year being recorded at several places. The temperature, however, is not severe, which prevents extraordinary suffering.

Telegraph lines returning to Cheyenne, Wyo., from expeditions to repair lines leading out of that city report that the damage by the storm is enormous. For miles telegraph wires are broken between every pole and the time required to make repairs cannot be foretold, as the weather is still threatening.

West of Cheyenne and east of Cheyenne hundreds of poles have been broken off short, while others became so top-heavy with snow and ice that they were uprooted. The total snowfall was 15 inches.

NO ROLLER TOWELS FOR THEM

Iowa Traveling Men Form Association to Remedy Evils of Country Hotels.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 21.—"Down with the roller towel" is the slogan unfurled by "Travelers' Protective Association of Iowa," composed of traveling men who have organized the point of revolt against the country hotels' communism in toilet supplies.

"Paid for supplies we don't get? Never! Longer on account of the cost of redressing roller towels," comes next. This is the strictly practical platform on which the year's campaign will be waged. Hotels using roller towels will be boycotted; likewise those charging for the uneaten supper. Any railroad that will comply with the sleeping car demands will get all the business.

Maj. Warner Engages Photographer to Take Views of River Damage.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 21.—Maj. William Warner, newly elected senator from Missouri, has sent Will H. Givens, a Kansas City man, on a photographic tour of the river from St. Louis to Sioux City to get views demonstrating the necessity for government appropriation to protect city property and the river from flooding away. Since the government several years ago withdrew its support for this sort of work, the evils on the river have become much worse than ever. Many small towns are threatened with destruction, while cities face the problem of protecting themselves.

Maj. Warner will endeavor to organize a group of western senators to accomplish useful results. Mr. Givens spent two days here recently taking pictures.

St. Louisian Sells Big Ranch. F. H. Krebsmann, St. Louis insurance man, owner of the "L.S." ranch in the Missouri River bottoms, has sold his ranch to six or eight Chicago men. An agent of Swift & Co. had been negotiating for the property, he says, but did not offer to buy it. The ranch covers 6,000 acres of grazing and agricultural land on which are now more than 500 head of cattle. The price was $150,000 for the cattle. The ranch has been conducted for breeding purposes, the income being disposed of to feeders and farmers.

WORLD AS FIELD FOR OPERATIONS OF FRAUD KING

"Prince" Savine, Now a Prisoner in Russia, Is Well Known to Police of American Cities and Throughout Canada.

CRIME RECORD IS LONG AND HIS "GAMES" NOVEL

Spent Millions, Married a Countess and Tried to Get the Bulgarian Throne—Edward VII Among His Victims.

CHICAGO, April 21—Nicholas Savine, who styles himself alternately "prince" and "Count of Toulouse-Lautrec," who is well known in Chicago, and who is well known in the world's most picturesque adventures, is the newest prisoner in his native country, Russia. A telegram from Berlin states that upon a request from the Russian consul at Bremen, Savine has been conveyed to the frontier and turned over to the Russian authorities.

The German police also delivered to the Russian agents the sum of $50,000, which was found on Savine's person and which is the booty of his more recent swindles.

Thus Russia has taken back its own—the master of swindlers and a broken, prematurely old man of 47. Twice a convict in Siberia and since then arrested for swindling in almost every country under the sun, he is the latest for this remarkable Russian. Once a part of the world's record, for in that time he has also tried to advantage as a scion of a princely house, married a countess, squandered millions of dollars, and come almost within reach of the throne of Bulgaria.

His Record in Chicago.

Chicago knows him well. It was in Chicago that he was arrested for a time when his fortune had ebbed. It was in Chicago that he was arrested while living at the Auditorium, April 20, 1900. This was at the instance of Montreal (Quebec) authorities, the charge being forgery of bonds.

After a hard fight for extradition the Canadian authorities got possession of the swindler and gave him a year in prison. Since gaining his freedom he has bobbed up under arrest in a number of foreign cities, but has always managed to wriggle out of his difficulties and get back to the great highway of his adventures.

Savine is a modern picaroon. He is a Ruthless swindler, a confidence man, a swindling pretender, and a philosopher when behind the bars for his misdeeds or penniless in his periods of misfortune. Few men, perhaps, have so faithfully lived up to the theory that the world owes them a living or collected it in so jovial and lawless a manner.

Whatever his later pretensions, it is pretty clearly established that Savine came of an aristocratic Russian family and was born about 1858. From the death one after another of three elder brothers, and finally of his father, he came into possession of an estate of 100,000 acres and an invested capital of $5,000,000.

First $5,000,000 "Fling."

He was 22 years old and he proceeded to enjoy his fortune. He wined, dined, and gamed, lived luxuriously, entertained lavishly, insanely, squandered hundreds of thousands in caprices, and so came hilariously to the end of his rope in three years.

The creditors took what was left, including the proceeds of his army commission, which he sold, and the young man drifted to Paris to live by the remarkable sharpness of his wits.

In Paris Savine embarked upon a life of bluff on a grand scale. He obtained money in a manner known at present as Chadickeian and was soon living in great style. His apartment was a resort for the most reckless gamblers in Europe, and here he preyed impartially upon the rich men who came together to prey upon each other.

Presently he got in with royalty, borrowed money indiscriminately on every hand and repaid it in smiles and patronage. King Edward, when Prince of Wales, is said to have found the "prince" such a "good fellow" that he lent him thousands of pounds.

Marries a Beautiful Countess.

He is next heard of as a confidential agent in the pay of four governments at the same time, selling the military secrets of one to the other and back again with the utmost daring and impunity. About this time he contracted a marriage under the name of Mlle. Clemence Borvoort, a beautiful young woman who had attracted a great deal of attention in Paris. The adventurer led the life of a dandy, but it was not till twenty years later that she was able to get the marriage annulled by the French courts.

The third marriage, the one that made Savine a count, was with a girl from an old French family which disclaims any connection with him.

Savine had been married only about a year when his sudden fortune began to fail. He had to live on expenses. For several years he drifted around the European capitals, but in 1882, when 34 years old, he began to attract international attention once more through his efforts to get the Bulgarian throne. He courted Stanisoff into favoring him for the successor of Ferdinand. He was forthwith dispatched to Constantinople, where he was received by the Sultan. There he was recognized by a Russian secret agent and instantly kidnapped and sent to Russia to answer to several charges of conspiracy.

Sentenced to Siberia.

Savine was tried at Moscow in 1882 and sentenced ten years at hard labor in the mines. But the genius of the adventurer contrived to escape from the mines and to make his way to Tomsk, where he established himself as a corn merchant. He became a swindler, soothsayer, and bet on the series of juggling in grain, which probably got him into jail, where he was identified with the "prince" and "count" in the mines, went into unconsciousness and was thrown into a dungeon.

He was released after about a year longer in the usual settlement, from which he escaped again in the latter part of 1883, made his way to Siberia, and eventually to Shanghai, where he took passage to the United States. When in China he related his experiences as a day laborer in San Francisco, Denver, and then

KILLED IN QUARREL OVER ISLAND LAND

Foreman of Howell's, in Missouri River, Shot by Farmer for Opening Fence.

PLEA OF SELF-DEFENSE.

Prisoner Says Victim, When Ordered From Premises, Raised His Gun to Fire.

As the result of a neighborhood quarrel over possession of some property on Howell's Island, 12 miles northwest of St. Charles, in the Missouri river, John Huff was shot and killed Thursday by Christian Seigner, both of whom lived on the island. As told in late editions of Thursday's Post-Dispatch, Seigner surrendered himself to the authorities, declaring he acted in self-defense.

Huff was employed by a man named Laubie, with whom Seigner had a law-suit a few weeks ago over the possession of the property occupied by Seigner. This suit was decided in favor of Seigner, who says since that time the fence around his field has been cut several times, allowing cattle to go into his farm and injure his crops.

According to the story now told by Seigner, while he was patrolling his property Thursday he came upon Huff in the act of cutting the fence on the place. He ordered Huff to leave the place, and that Huff raised a gun, which he carried.

At that, Seigner says, he raised his gun and killed Huff instantly.

Seigner reported his act to a neighbor, and, in company with F. Brunner, went to the sheriff's office to demand that he be surrendered to Constable Madas. He was later turned over to Sheriff Hines of St. Charles.

Seigner is 16 years old, is married and has four children. Huff was 55 years old and leaves a wife and one daughter.

SECRETARY HAY RECOVERING.

GENOA, April 21—Secretary Hay, today from Bad Nauheim, by way of Milan. The secretary is in the best of spirits, declaring that the air of Italy has been most efficacious and that he feels that he has quite recovered his health.

HILL DETERMINED TO DESTROY GLOBE

Owner of St. Paul Paper "Chloroforms" Sheet Rather Than Accept $150,000 for It.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. PAUL, Minn., April 21.—The demise of the St. Paul Daily Globe is the result of a whim of J. J. Hill, the railroad magnate, who owns the property.

It is characteristic of Hill not to sell anything which he is through with, but to destroy it. He did this with his former handsome residence and he is doing it with the Globe. This is shown by the fact that all the type from which the mailing list is printed was destroyed in the melting pot.

The Globe came into possession of Mr. Hill by reason of his loaning money to the former publishers, and it has been an expense to him ever since. It being reported that he has put up $15,000 annually for the maintenance of the paper. The paper has fought his merger battles in this state, and now that the fight is ended by the dissolution of the Northern Securities Co., he has care to be taken no longer with the property.

Years ago, when the property belonged to Lewis Baker, it was a paying property and one of the leading publishing organs of the era. It was the only morning Democratic paper in St. Paul.

It is said that only last week Mr. Hill was offered $15,000 for the plant and refused the offer. He is known to have had other offers. But one or two men in the office know of the decision of Mr. Hill to chloroform the Globe until the announcement was made. The paper will expire on April 30.

WITHDRAWS ALIMONY MOTION.

The attorneys for Mrs. Madge Thompson, who recently instituted suit for divorce from William S. Thompson, manager of the National Park of Commerce building ing and son of President William F. Thompson of that bank, Friday morning withdrew the petitioner's motion in Judge Fisher's division of the Circuit Court asking for alimony pending the trial.

The reason given for the withdrawal of the motion was that defendant was now paying this alimony without being ordered so to do by the court, and that he was on a list of 24 default docket cases set for next Monday in Judge Fisher's court.

EAST SIDE SALOONS
OPEN; IF ORDERLYFIVE YEARS IN "PEN"
FOR $5 FORGERY

"Five years for five dollars?" exclaimed Emil Kemper, in German, in Judge Bishop's division of the Criminal court Friday morning, when the verdict of the jury was read aloud.

He has directed Chief of Police Purdy to notify them if order is maintained in their places they may be permitted to keep open. If they do not keep order the saloon is to be closed on that day.

He directed Chief of Police Purdy to notify them if order is maintained in their places they may be permitted to keep open. If they do not keep order the saloon is to be closed on that day.

Kemper is 26 years of age. He asserts that a year ago he was secretary to the chief of police of Hamburg.

Dreaming of great possibilities in the World's Fair city, he says, he gave up his place and came to St. Louis last summer. Fortune did not smile as he had anticipated, and last January, after the Fair was over, he found himself without money in a strange land.

At that latest way out of trouble he decided to draw a check on himself. He made it a small one—only $5. He signed it "G. Helm" and endorsed it with his own name. He presented it to C. H. Fischer, paying teller of the German Savings Institution, and received the money. Then the check was found to be forged, and Fischer was arrested. He has been in jail since Feb. 1.

"My reasons for this," he said Friday, "is first that it is a violation of the code of ethics among saloons that most crimes are committed in all-night saloons."

ELIAS SMITH IS HANGED FOR MURDER

First Execution in Pulaski County
Conducted Without a Hitch
Early This Morning.

NECK IS BROKEN BY FALL.

Doomed Man Utters No Word
From Scaffold, Contrary to Expectation—Story of Crime.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WAYNESVILLE, Mo., April 21.—Elias Smith was hanged at 7:40 o'clock this morning for the murder, Nov. 7, 1904, of William Smith. Smith's neck was broken by the fall and physical death was instantaneous. Their statements have been made by the fact that after the drop fell there was only one convulsive struggle of the body, which afterwards became limp as it swayed from the scaffold for eleven minutes before being cut down.

Today's execution is the first hanging recorded in Pulaski County.

Smith made no statement before going to his death. It had been expected that he would reply on the scaffold to charges that had been made against him accusing him of the murder of a dear mate. During the years ago, for which crime Willis Howard, the Kentucky feed-lister, was hanged.

About seventy-five persons were present in the little jail yard when Smith was led out to the gallows. He walked between two guards, and, save for lowered head and extreme pallor, there was little about him that suggested that he was going to his death. He walked unassisted up the steps to the scaffold and stood alone while his feet and arms were manacled and the black cap adjusted.

The ear of every spectator was strained to catch some word from the doomed man, but not a sound passed his lips, save a few parting words to the jail attendant as they fixed the straps about his body. The execution was absolutely without a hitch.

The crime for which Smith was executed was committed Nov. 7, 1904. He was employed by a stockman named William Smith, who on the day of the murder had sold some stock and had on his person about $400 in money.

The motive for the crime was robbery. Smith waylaid his employer in a lonely spot and struck him over the head with an iron bar, killing him. He then tied up the body and dragged his victim to a secluded ravine, about a mile away, where he piled leaves and twigs over the body and set fire to them. The body was found, but did not burn, with the result that the mangled body was discovered next day by hunters.

Suspicion pointed at Smith and he was arrested, though stoutly declining his innocence. He was tried before Judge Woodside at the March term of Circuit court, St. Louis. Not until after he was convicted did he confess that he had committed the crime.

Since then, during confinement in jail, he has shown a lack of himself, and at all times preserved a manner of indifference regarding his fate.

Belleville Man's Experience Disproves Saying About Safety of Money in Land.

The saying "Put your money in real estate, which nobody can steal," is disproved by the experience of Henry E. Schrader of Belleville. According to warrants which he has secured his real estate had been stolen by the wagon load.

Schrader's home is on the corner of 11th and Main avenue. Of late it has been gradually disappearing. He investigated and the result was warrant for John Griffin and Edward Rule, charging them with the larceny of one wagon load of his real estate, of the value of $1,000.

Griffin and Rule were arrested Friday. They said they were working for Morris Spiritan and did not know that they were working in taking Schrader's real estate. They were bound over to the grand jury. A warrant was also issued for Spiritan.

BRYAN AND STATE SOCIALISM.

There can be no doubt of the determination of William Jennings Bryan to destroy the Democratic party and erect a party of state socialism on the ruins of the historic structure built by Jefferson.

This much was established at the Iroquois Club dinner in Chicago and by subsequent statements made by Mr. Bryan's political friends.

In the Bryan scheme of things the Democratic party must favor municipal ownership of telephone, lighting and street railway systems; state ownership of all local railroads within each state, including, presumably, interurban electric lines, and national ownership of trunk lines and telegraphs. With this must logically come national ownership of long-distance telephone lines; of all railroads which are not wholly within a single state; of American steamship lines on all navigable rivers, on the great lakes and on the high seas; of all mines; of all oil refineries, and of all other utilities, the use of which is not confined to the territorial limits of a city or a single state.

Mr. Bryan is promoting the most colossal scheme of centralization that was ever devised to smother the vital principles of a true republic. A constitutional monarchy similar to that of Great Britain would involve such subversion of democratic institutions; and this propaganda of tri-state socialism is jauntily instituted in the name of Thomas Jefferson, the greatest of all opponents of centralization and paternalism.

The British troops never wrought such devastation to Jefferson's plantation as the Bryanites are trying to bring upon his political principles. Justification can sometimes be found for municipal ownership of certain public utilities. Cities generally have taken out of the hands of private corporations the business of supplying water. Many cities engaged in public lighting as a choice of evils. When an offensive and defensive alliance between corrupt Tammany politicians and the outlaw Gas Trust oppressed the people, there is much, indeed, to be said in favor of the city's tearing up the expired franchises and distributing gas as it distributes water.

But as an established fundamental policy, municipal ownership of all utilities would eventually mean state control. Cities are mere creatures of the state and are subject to such rules and regulations as the state may choose to make. State control of these utilities, plus state ownership of steam and electric railways and interurban telephone lines, would mean the creation of a political machine that probably could never be overthrown.

The railroads of the United States employ 1,300,000 persons. In all, nearly 2,000,000 persons must be in the employ of the various public service corporations of the country—2,000,000 more prospective office holders in the Bryan scheme of Jeffersonian Democracy.

Everybody knows the power wielded in national politics by the letter carriers and in city politics by the police and firemen. Everybody knows the power of more than 1,000,000 persons in federal elections. Add to the public servants now on the payroll all employees of street railways, interurban railroads, gas companies, electric light companies, telephone companies, and steam railways, and the business of government would be completely in the hands of office holders.

With the employees combined for continually higher wages, shorter hours and greater privileges, the state government in the end would remain in the control of the political machine that made the most liberal concessions to these employees. Indeed, the employees themselves would be the machine and administer the government for their personal profit.

Add national socialism to municipal and state socialism and the Mexicanization of the United States would be an accomplished fact. With the federal office holders in control of trunk lines, telegraphs, steamships and mines, they would have practically the industries of the country at their mercy. The producer and the shipper would be in the power of the office holder. The national political machine would have a community of interests with the state machines and all of them would be welded into a harmonious whole.

To complete the system only government savings banks, which Mr. Bryan also favors, would be needed. Then, organized politics could control the savings as well as the transportation and industries of the people. The scheme of a government of the office holders, by the office holders and for the office holders method—the enforcement of law.

By means of his influence over the office holders and the industries of Mexico, Diaz has kept himself in the presidency for life. The elections have been little more than a sham, a form, a meaningless ceremony. By his control of the military and the office holders of a centralized republic Napoleon III was able to make himself Emperor of the French, despite the radical, revolutionary, republican instincts and traditions of the French people. Once established in the presidency, his control of the huge and intricate machinery of a centralized government made the achievement of empire easy, regardless of the cheapness of his methods, the scandal of his personal history and the insincerity of his pretensions.

All that Diaz accomplished in Mexico and Louis Napoleon in France, Mr. Bryan would make possible in the United States by constructing a government dominated by office holders concerned chiefly in perpetuating their jobs. And this triple-state socialism is advocated in the name of Democratic principle, to which it is opposed in the letter, in the spirit and in everything it has made the republic a republic in fact as well as in name.

If Mr. Bryan's plan could possibly be carried out, which we refuse to believe, Voltaire's definition would be actualized in the United States: Two-thirds of the people would be paying what they could to support the other third—to maintain an aristocracy of office holders, if you please, responsible only to themselves.

As between the Republican party and the triple-state socialism of William J. Bryan, the American people, under protest, have chosen the Republican party—extravagance, high tariff, big stick. Theodore Roosevelt and all.

If politicians do not take a hint from President Roosevelt's large family idea and Mayor Beall's flats-for-children liberality, they are dull.

HOPE FOR THE THIRSTY.

Citizens of St. Louis who are harassed by a Sunday thirst, and who are therefore affected by the order closing saloons on Sunday, can hardly fail to be interested in the late intelligence that comes speeding this way from New Haven, Conn., where a Yale student drank 12 cocktails in 24 minutes.

This is a form of "higher education" which has been over looked by our institutions of learning heretofore.

Only a few years ago it was demonstrated that a human being can exist for months without a stomach. Now, if a man can exist without a stomach, to what heights of gastratorial joy may he not attain with a stomach trained to follow the caprices of his appetite; and why, whether at college or by private tutorage, cannot the stomach be educated up to a point where a man can drink eight days without working as easily as a camel can work eight days without drinking?

Our sociologists will bend themselves to the task of enlarging and improving the human stomach as faithfully as hot-air balloonists have done to the evolving of seedless oranges, thornless roses, etc., so that a man can drink enough on Saturday to last him till Monday, never "dying out," but continually irradiating that gentle warmth and glow which is the desideratum the toper seeks, the Sunday closing problem will settle itself at once and without ado.

Some of the beautiful St. Louis Easter brides, artistically photographed, make a timely first page for the coming Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine. This year's bevy of Easter brides contains some remarkably pretty young women. A weird and fascinating Sherlock Holmes story is the next "good thing" offered. In this Dr. Doyle is seen at his best. Girls masquerading as boys, and society girls as farmers, are the topics discussed on two other pages, which are strikingly illustrated. Perhaps the most important article in the Magazine is the page in which experts deal with the question as to the probable course of Japan after the war with Russia is ended, and its effect upon the United States. How far will the ambition of the Japanese lead them? Will they become a conquering race, reaching out for America's possessions? This is vitally important to every man, woman and child in America. The new study of character by "reading" the ear, is applied in this Magazine to many St. Louisans. See if your ears are pictured, and read the expert's conclusions regarding them. Dress and table manners are pictured and described in a charming way on the page specially devoted to women's interests. The page of New and Strange Things is highly informing, and there are many other interesting and up-to-date articles. The color page picturing the week's theatrical novelties completes a Magazine that is full, from cover to cover, with timely and readable material.

PLEDGES OF GOOD PROMISE.

There is a ray of light in the consummation of the plan of monopolizing all the franchise monopolies in St. Louis by the North American Investment Co., which is marked by the taking over of the United Railways Co. Mr. John I. Beggs, who is now at the head of the street railways and lighting companies in this city, as the representative of the general company, pledges his management to "better service, better cars and generally improved facilities." He outlines an unexceptional policy of providing more cars, keeping them clean, improving the facilities north and south, insisting upon courtesy in the treatment of the public and adherence to the merit system.

Keeping these pledges will go far towards justifying so great an extension of monopoly and reconciling St. Louisans to the placing of such enormous power over and responsibility for their comfort and welfare in the hands of one corporation.

This much must be said in justice to the management of the North American Investment Co., that its control of the lighting companies of the city has been beneficial. Its management in the main has been marked by increasing courtesy, liberality and efficiency. If to these qualities were added moderation in using the great opportunities for profit exhibited by the improvement of facilities in proportion to an increase of earnings, the condition would be tolerable.

When the private owners of municipal franchises consider only opportunities for gain, to the exclusion of opportunities for public service, they have only themselves to blame if the people take radical measures to oust them from all public service opportunities and assume the control and management of their own franchises. This power of control and regulation lies in the hands of the people as a measure of protection.

The "W" on the 17-year locusts may this time forebode water.

THE MISSOURI METHOD.

Attorney-General Hadley says he has "enough evidence to prove that the Standard Oil Co. has been violating the laws of Missouri by monopolizing the oil products of the state."

If this be true, the Attorney-General has a double opportunity—first, to serve the people of the state by smashing the monopoly, and, next, to set an example to other states of the proper method of proceeding to smash monopolies and protect the people from their oppression.

Mr. Hadley should vigorously prosecute the trust in the courts. If he will demonstrate the power of the courts and the effectiveness of the law to restrain monopolistic greed and to protect the public, he will strengthen republican government. It would be a notable achievement to prove that no state need resort to the sensational and socialistic methods of Kansas to control monopoly. Let us have the Missouri method—the enforcement of law.

The "W" on the 17-year locusts may this time forebode water.

A FOUR LEAF CLOVER By Ivan Whin The Romance of a St. Louis Base-ball Star.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
Ed Slade of Fairview, Neb., pitches for the local club and invents a new style of delivery which is called the "hang ball." It makes him famous, and O'Leary of the Dallas, Tex., club signs him for two years at $500 a year. He is very much in love with Grace Lindsay, who gives him a four-leaf clover with the hope that it will bring him luck. On his last day in Fairview he saves Grace's life by throwing her from the path of a runaway horse and is himself knocked down. However, O'Leary becomes manager of the St. Louis club and takes Ed with him. Grace Lindsay sends another four-leaf clover and asks him to marry Ed if he "makes good." The last game is to be played, he strikes out ten men, but he is struck out himself. He is told that he is not fit for the management's opinion of his work.

CHAPTER V. Fallen From Grace.

SLADE'S popularity among the players was a source of considerable satisfaction to O'Leary. He had plucked this youth out there on the Nebraska prairie, discovered him, in fact, and had taught him the finer points of the game. Naturally his interest was fatherly and keen. As the young man continued to "make good," O'Leary's pride and his belief that he alone possessed infallible judgment of players grew.

It is always good for a pitcher to have some feeling in the club back of him, and so O'Leary gave him popularity. He is blessed, indeed. In such a fall, the club plays for him as it would not under a system of rewards and penalties.

O'Leary took occasion to impress this on Slade. "Roll it along," he said, pointing of that same popularity. "Be a 'good fellow.' You don't need to drink or bet high, but buy a little beer and sit in a quiet corner and don't let the boys think you're a preacher or a tight-wad."

Youth, however, is eternally extreme. The boy taught him poker and took his money away, but O'Leary was patient and smiled. He could not understand the danger of drink, but following his instructions drank with the boys until a carriage was needed to take him home.

That was the night Grace Lindsay's father spent in St. Louis. He had a townsmen's pride in one who has gone forth and succeeded. Much rumor of Slade's work went back to Fairview and Lindsay had a fancy to see him. At Slade's hotel the clerk told him the pitcher was in the bar.

A mandolin song arose as the Nebraskan entered and in the flushed redling singer Lindsay discovered Ed Slade. He was not a Puritan, but, turning on his heel, Grace's father went away, taking an irradicable impression of a drunken Slade.

O'Leary had his hands full checking the youth in the course on which he had as confidently set him but it was accomplished at length.

There had been no letter from Grace for nearly a month and Slade wrote almost tearfully to know the reason for her silence. Her father wrote briefly in reply: "My daughter does not wish to continue correspondence with a drunken rowdy," he said.

"A drunken rowdy," repeated Slade. So that was what he had become and Grace had heard. If his evil reputation extended so far he must have given much cause for censure. He was conscious of more self-restraint, a greater degree of temperance than some other members of the club could boast and he had not regarded them as drunken rowdies. He had never failed to be in condition when called upon to pitch. There were men in the profession who could not be relied upon to report in condition and even in emergencies disappointed their managers but were not called drunken rowdies.

As he reviewed all this he felt injured and yet he remembered occasions when he had been all that Lindsey called him. "Drink doesn't do me any good and it has done me harm in this," he thought. "I'll cut it out." The boys will roar, but I can stand that."

"The water wagon for mine," he told them when, after a Chicago series the sports of the club suggested a little relief from the hard rule of the manager. He was astonished by their ready acceptance of his dictum.

"All right, Kid," they said. "Keep your seat. We won't pull you off."

And they offered him no temptation to fall. Indeed, they had often discussed his former course without approving it and seeing the danger of its continuance.

Afterward he was as clean as a girl, always jovial and ready for work, and modest in victory as well as undismayed by defeat. They called him "the preacher" now in mild ridicule, and not because he preached, for he never did that, but solely because of his clean, simple life.

Grace Lindsay is engaged to Prof. Henderson, his brother wrote in a budget of home news, and proceeded carelessly away from that topic to the price of wheat.

It was a melancholy moment for Slade, but healthy young men do not pine under such blows. He had more than his share of work, for O'Leary found him most efficient when worked hardest, and hence there was little inducement to despair. The manager's advice was to be patient.

A sporting writer in a special article on him laid emphasis on his total absence from alcohol and his constant form.

Slade marked the paper and sent it to Brother George with a hint that the Lindsay might care to read it, but if he hoped for any expression of approval from Fairview he was grievously disappointed.

Show me a woman who, having accepted a stenographic position in a first-class business house in St. Louis, and who shows her ability to do the work assigned to her, will refuse to elevate herself to higher offices in the company's employ, if she is given the opportunity.

Firms employing a large number of female stenographers do so with the understanding that an applicant is thoroughly competent in the single art of stenography, and even penmanship matters little in the events. This is not to say that a stenographer might in the common mass understand the common name of "stenographer" and advancement becomes an utter impossibility. Patience being thus put to the test is naturally found wanting, but found wanting only under the imposition of monotonous labor, which is contrary to the business woman's nature.

Hence, when others' chains block the way to the front of the office, and a larger roll of green paper, and when females entertain outside propositions, stenography shows no glimmer of a light under bushel, which business college life flatteringly promises.

Why would a business manager marry his stenographer unless he has some faith in her a fact which seems amazing. Then why would anybody blame him? Then why blame her? One thing I would advise is when a man gets a good business proposition is a woman, if he has been enough to know it, that he treat her as if she were worth while in a business way, and that he learn to appreciate a good thing when it comes his way.

Perhaps the outspoken firms mentioned expect to find first-class stenographers, who will work for $4 or $5 per week, because they are female. In this, however, they display the usual narrow-mindedness which men have shown since Adam allowed the core. Then woman had the upper hand.

The "New Woman" Has Come to Stay.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Being a female stenographer with ten years' experience to my credit, I cannot sit by and allow myself and sister-workers to be bow-beaten in the fashion that we were in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, as certain business men of this city. Let me give you a little of my own experience.

I will be out next month since I graduated from one of the best business colleges which this city affords. A few days after graduation I accepted a position with a commercial house which I kept for over four years. During my connection with the firm they met with reverses, and as a consequence, it was either a case of take less salary and remain with them or leave and look elsewhere for more remuneration. I had been thoroughly acquainted with the work and liked it. I not only did stenographic work, but worked on the books, went to the bank, did collecting, and even printed grocers' names on small cards which were used in the business. Because they were not able to pay me what I had been getting, did I leave them? No! I recalled their kindness and leniency when I started in, as green as I could be, and thought to recompense them, though in a small measure, by remaining and doing their work for a less salary rather than that they should be put to the inconvenience, and, possibly, expense of breaking in a "new girl." I have reason to believe that my efforts were not in vain in that they have asked me to come to another city where they are now located.

I believe that even the above mentioned business men of St. Louis will have to admit that there are exceptions to all rules, and that there are a few female stenographers whose ambitions rise above thumbing a typewriter. If the men do not want to be put on the business market, why do they not "get busy" and propose marriage?

She: Mamma, you know, is quite a judge of human nature.

He: Judge? God! Sometimes she's more like a prosecuting attorney—Puck,

The Kaiser as He Is.

Readers who wish to appreciate the exploits of the German Kaiser, which are reported almost daily, should have at hand when they open the morning paper a copy of Henri de Noussanne's "Kaiser as He Is," translated by Walter Littlefield and published by the Putnams. The witty Frenchman reveals the character of this dashing monarch, and explains his positive genius for holding the stage. According to the Kaiser, "Providence is his friend and ally," says this author, "and God one of his most eminent contemporaries."

Personally, Mr. Drew is said to be most agreeable. He laughs all the vacation through, and then when the theatrical season begins he freezes up like this.

Mr. Drew has had a rather long and full brilliant career upon the American stage. He was for many years leading man of the Augustin Daly Stock company in New York City, and it was there he received that education in acting which

ANOTHER HOLD UP OUT ON THE COAST

Busy Days for the Racing and Baseball Press Agents—
Jockey Now Trainer.

BY NIE.

PERMIT for the Britt-White bout out in Frisco has been held up by some of the political people in charge of the license department of that city. Permission to hold the battle, however, is expected to be issued just as soon as the promoters are held up.

"NOBODY ever went away from St. Louis hungry for good, clean, racing."—Press agent's report—Indeed, they take one look in the gate and lose their appetite for the sport.

AIMAL trainer with the Hagenbeck show used to be a jockey. Some of the boys now riding at the local tracks are said to have pretty good control over their mounts, as it is, and they are not being paid by any animal show, either.

A DOUBLE row of a hundred boxes has been built around the grand stand at the Polo Grounds, New York, and it is expected that box parties by the daily attendance of thousands upon thousands that flock to the national park each day.—From the prose writings of the Polo Grounds official press agent—Fine and dandy. The season started off there with a 40,000 attendance. It is hard to imagine what the figures will be on a day like the Fourth of July or some other holiday.

ACCORDING to "Mat." in the New York Globe, the modern baseball writer must have a wonderful flow of language at his command. As proof positive he quotes a conversation which took place somewhere—shall I say in the office of the Globe?

"Mr. Baschit," said the sporting editor, "I observe that in your report of yesterday's ball game you say that McSqueely hit for a base."

"That, I believe, was the language I used," replied the baseball reporter.

"Well," continued the sporting editor, "don't you think you could have managed to be a trifle picturesque? Why not have put it this way: 'McSqueely loped over to the rubber, and getting his lamps on one of O'Shoot's easy benders, soaked it on the nozzle for a sack'?"

"Yes," responded the reporter, "I might have said that, but it did not occur to me when I was writing."

"Again," said the sporting editor, "you say 'Muttonhead caught a long fly from Slammer's bat.' Why not have put it this way: 'Slammer lapped the horseshoe and it looked good for four corners. But Muttonhead was there with the goods,' and just as the sphere was about to break a hole in the ground Muttonhead's lunchhook caressed it. The mob cut loose with their hymn mangiers, and the air was very dusky."

"I see what you mean," responded the reporter, "and in future I will endeavor to meet your view in relation to phraseology."

"It will be necessary, Mr. Baschit; for should you continue the antediluvian methods you have disclosed, it would be necessary to secure a man who had more modern ideas as to the proper method of describing a ball game."

HERE was another fanfest Friday morning around the Southern Hotel while the Cleveland players were waiting to see if the rain would let up in time to permit an afternoon game. Here is one sprung during the session by Harry Bay, which the fast Cleveland man credits to Allan Sangree of the New York World: The old-time player picked his bat; The spot was white where he wore his hat; But he'd massacred Rusie, Clarkson and Keefe.

And his eyes were good, though he'd too much. "If you don't look nach'r'l!" yelled the mob. "Bet you that LaJoie loses his job!"

The old-time player shifted his gird; His tongue in cheek, he tightened his lid, And he moltened his hands like he used to do. When he lammed to the fence a Homer or two.

If it didn't sound nach'r'l I'll be bound, To hear him about full horse and round:

Now, give us a good one—ever the plate, At my toots my knees or over the gate. I'm not afraid of your new-fangled shoot, You brass-toed, diamond-tinged, high-priced galoot!

If you like, sir; it's all the same! Show you how we fellers played the game!" The new-fangled pitcher looked 'round You sure do look mach'r'l; when I was a lad, I seen you, many time, make a home out the way you stand now! I'm a son of a gun!

You see, you say; well, here's a wide out! But the old-time player refused to clout.

He backstop grinned as he lay on his mitt, Thrice-broken finger that signalled for "out."

And his partner grinned back, though the mob jeered him more, and the old-time player continued to roar:

If you are afraid of me, say so! Get out of the box! You couldn't ha' subbed with Anson's White Sox!"

The new-fangled pitcher made no remark, but saluted the sphere with the best of fine cut, and let go a shoot that wabbled three ways, while the old-time player, who stood in a daze, had no chance to swing; couldn't even withdraw his hand, what moisture was left they flecked off his jaw.

ENVYONE.

"Well, if he don't look nach'r'l!" each one said, as he dried up a tear and wagged a head, and looked at the Hillies that lay on the pall, surrounding a golden and humid baseball.

Once more George Lachance has beaten his competitors for first base on the Boston American team. During the winter months, however, the Hillies, a minor leaguer from the West, had the senior skinned to a skeleton for the first week, but since the team has been in the city, Lachance has been in the minor leaguer of the others, and Manager Collier has made the announcement that the Hillies will again be seen at the first game.

Government Scientist Obtains Seismograph Photograph of Disturbances.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, April 21.—Dr. H. F. Reed of the United States geological survey at Johns Hopkins University has removed from the seismograph a film on which he says is a splendid record of the earthquake which caused such havoc in India.

Dr. Reed figured that if the date, April 6, is close, the reading was correct, the record in Baltimore was made at 8 a.m. April 3. He said he "can renew him every two weeks," only a few hours before the shock was discovered here.

LEAVES JILTER $50,000,000

South African Diamond King Wills Fortune to Girl Who Twice Refused to Marry Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., April 21.—Notwithstanding that he twice jilted by Miss Mata Cannon, Omaha girl, now Mrs. Joseph Munchhoff, Claude Henderson Heren, the African diamond king, worth $50,000,000 a couple of years ago, is alleged to have left his entire estate to Mata, wife of a small fortune, reached Mrs. Munchhoff through a cablegram from France.

Heren was principal owner of a maple syrup company of Quebec, which was a rival to the concern headed by Miss Cannon's father. Heren knew her as a little girl, and when in later years he proposed marriage the girl refused, because he was so poor.

Miss Cannon later married Joseph P. Munchoff, and Heren sold out his business and left for parts unknown. Several years later he was learned to be in South Africa, where he had amassed a fortune of $50,000,000.

Meantime the matrimonial sea of Mr. and Mrs. Munchhoff was anything but calm, and the divorce court was resort to, resulting in the nuptial knot being unknotted. Heren, owing to the fact that he again proposed his suit, and was refused a second time. He died several months ago.

CHICAGO THREATENED BY GENERAL STRIKE

Employers' Injunction Tactics
Met by Threats From Union Leaders of General Tieup.

FARLEY QUICKLY SENT FOR.

Professional "Strike-Breaker,"
Who Won for Subway Co.,
Will Take Charge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, April 21.—The first 14 days of the Montgomery-Ward teamsters' strike appear now to have been only a series of preliminary skirmishes. Today began the life and death struggle between employers and union labor, threatening now to involve the entire city.

The weapon which the union sharpened and prepared to use today, with all its might is a general strike. Employers commanding every resource that wealth and united interest can furnish, took up the weapon of court injunction against influence with their business and sought to fight violence and law-breaking with indictments and the criminal court.

Today the secretary of the Employers'
Association telegraphed for "Strike Breaker" Farley to come to Chicago and fight the unions.

The Employers' Association in making a move to secure the services of Farley, who never lost a strike in his life, and who in breaking the strike in New York, has taken an indication of their determination to fight the battle to the finish. The general strike, it is feared, will result in paralyzing the city of Chicago.

Marshall Field & Co., Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. and J. C. Farwell, Jr., were among the unions which were defeating goods in Montgomery. Ward & Co., International President C. P. Shea, may call a general strike of department store employees.

The Wholesale Furniture Manufacturers'
Association were given the same notice by A. J. Reed, business agent of the Furniture Drivers' Union.

Easter Oxfords Ankle-Fit—Quarter Sizes

All of the 93 Regal stores have just received from the Regal factory a fresh Easter stock of the most "taking" Oxfords ever modelled.

In diversity and distinctness of style, in wide variety of leathers, in limitless choice of sizes, it is the greatest line of Oxford shoes ever shown in Regal stores—and that means anywhere.

Regal Oxfords do not chafe or bulge! They are made over special Oxford lasts; other Oxfords are made over lasts that were designed and used for ordinary high-cut shoes.

A separate factory equipment of special Oxford lasts has been an unknown thing in the shoe business, yet that is exactly what we have provided this season.

CARNEGIE IS STILL FOR "LITTLE NANCY"

Steel King Not Turned From Favorite Niece by Marriage to Mother's Coachman.

PITTSBURG IS GASPING.

Many Stories Are Now Going the Rounds Bearing on Courtship of Madcap Heiress.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 21.—"Dobby Shafton's gone to sea, he'll come back and marry me."

Most of the upper crust in Pittsburgh today are humming the little song which Nancy Carnegie made famous on her introduction into society here a year ago. Now little Nancy has got married herself, but whether "Dobby" has turned out to be "Johnny" Hever, the coachman, Pittsburgh is still gasping over developments of the last two days in the case of the marriage of the girl of wealth to the employee of her mother's family.

The story is now told that James Hever refused to cease his attentions to the little daughter of his wealthy employer and when Ollie G. Rickertson, a brother-in-law of the girl, came and told Hever that he was a horsewhip him if he did not quit, Hever told him there was no time like the present and the fight began at once. The story is that Rickertson did make the effort but had the whip taken from him and suffered a good beating from the fist of the angered coachman.

The worst crime with which Hever is said to have been accused was that he taught Nancy to ride "cossack seat," or astride with the divided skirt. This almost gave the fashionable members of the Carnegie family a fit.

Mr. Rickertson took his whip in hand and Hever took his in hand, according to the report. Hever is said to have been so狠 that he must have hit him and he went to New York. It was not so long after this that the marriage took place.

When Hever considered a good joke on Andrew Carnegie, the staid and stately steel king, who always loved his madcap niece, it is said he was so angry that he must have been asked by the members of the family to go and see Nancy and get her not only to break off with Hever, but to quit the marriage.

Mr. Carnegie sent word that it was his will that his niece should come before him.

Nancy sent word back by the minister that she would not leave him.

But "Uncle" business was very important he might come up to the riding school and she would try and give him a few kicks.

Andrew Carnegie, the staid and stately steel king, who always loved his madcap niece, is also said to be very angry.

Mr. Carnegie was married to a woman at that time and participated in the incident.

It is said that the supposed Miss Carnegie had been asked to take part in some important social affair during the past year, but had always declined on one pretexts or another. The announcement of her marriage is generally taken as a good and sufficient explanation of her actions.

WHEAT WON'T GROW IN THE NORTHWEST

Secretary of Agriculture Sees Pending Big Advance in Price Unless Method's Changed.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—"Our great fields along the northern border are refusing to grow wheat," said James Wilson, Secretary of agriculture, today, "and unless the American farmers change their method of growing this product there will be a large increase in the price of breadstuffs."

"At present the average production of wheat to the acre is eight bushels, while in Europe the farmers grow 30. Last year the American wheat crop was sickly and this indicates that the land is not fit to grow wheat any longer on a profitable basis."

"In order to save the wheat fields of the United States we have sent an expert to the northern part of Norway and Sweden to find legumes which will grow in cold climates. Many of the farmers of the great Northwest expect to grow wheat at a profit they must rotate their crops."

"At present we have no leguminous plants which will grow in the Northwest that can be rotated with wheat. With continued decrease in the yield in the Northwest the farmers of Iowa, Illinois, Kansas and Nebraska will not be growing wheat again, but they will not do so until they can get at least a dollar a bushel for it."

Says She Stole for Child.

Unable to save enough out of her wages to send to her little daughter, Theresa Valentine, a widow, stole a watch from Jessie Hopson, another waitress, and sold it to a pawnbroker for $12. She told the police she had no idea for whom she sold the watch, and that she had no knowledge of the missing watch. She said the child was with its grandmother in Freeport, Ill.

POLICE THE FOES OF JUSTICE

Chicago Judges Declare Evidence Favorable to Accused Is Often Wrongfully Withheld.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Overzealousness to secure convictions and prejudices against all accused persons on the part of police often result in the attorney general having been declared responsible for the hanging of many innocent men by Judge Henry V. Freeman of the First Appellate Court in a lecture to University of Chicago law students.

Judge Freeman spoke on "Legal Ethics."

"In many cases," said the judge, "facts in favor of the accused are purposely and wrongfully withheld by lawyers and police in their efforts to secure convictions, regardless of justice."

PUTNAM'S PATH ALMOST FATAL

Men Drive Down Steps Made Famous by "Put's" Ride, and Meet Disaster.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 21.—During a drive out with Richard Palmer was pointed out to his visitor, George Jones, the famous places in locality, they approached "Put's Hill," down which General Putnam is credited with galloping at risk check his horse as it reached the brow of the hill at a brisk trot.

"This is the hill Gen. Putnam made famous by his escape from the Indians, down them on his horse at full speed dodging arrows and bullets."

Jones, in his excitement, grasped the rail that guards the steps. The horse crashed through the railing and landed on the steps, and turned over, the iron wagon and occupants after it. It then ran down the flight of steps, landed on its side in a deep, rocky creek at the foot of the steep declivity and was killed. Palmer and Jones were painfully injured.

At 11:15 o'clock this morning Dr. Ford announced that the patient had grown alarmingly worse and was sinking rapidly.
